MUNICIPALITIES SUGGEST JOINT ADMINISTRATION

Eastern Units Disposed to Retain "Local Autonomy"
If Possible

To consider suggested disorganization, or amalgamation, of rural municipal districts situated between Hanna and the Saskatchewan border, a meeting was held in Chinook on Thursday last when 12 municipalities of "The Hanna to Alasko" considered this subject. The outstanding thought which was apparent throughout the afternoon and evening session was that the majority of the delegates wished the municipal units to retain "local autonomy." Municipal Districts' Association were represented by official delegates. Because of the necessity for further government assistance by way of direct grants to finance relief, hospital service, medical service, and in some cases municipal accounts, it has been pointed out that it might be in the interests of the

A New And Better Viewpoint

The recent annual convention of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce held at Winnipeg, was, it is generally recognized, one of the most important and in many respects the most significant gathering yet held by that body. It was not only one of the largest assemblages of outstanding men in the financial, industrial and commercial life of the Dominion yet convened, but it appears to have been animated by a new spirit based upon a fuller recognition of the responsibilities of what has been termed Big Business to the country as a whole and to the masses of producers, workers and consumers who, in the last analysis, are the backbone of the nation.

Important resolutions dealing with matters of far-reaching social and economic questions, and involving vital changes in national policies, were adopted, not the least significant of which was the declaration in favor of the negotiations of a Reciprocity Agreement with the United States in matters of trade. The adoption of this resolution in itself reveals the change in sentiment and viewpoint of the business world of Canada.

Significant, too, were some of the addresses delivered by men occupying high executive positions in the industrial world. For example, Mr. T. A. Russell, president of the Massey-Harris Co., told the convention that "the success of industry and farming were wrapped up together in Canada in a way which nothing could separate," and he gave facts and figures to prove it. As the purchasing power of the farmer declined, said Mr. Russell, so did the demand and output for farm implements. In the case of the Massey-Harris Co., he said, employment dropped from 4,900 in 1929 to an average of less than 1,200 for the years 1931, 1932 and 1933. "Not only has this proved a hardship for the men thrown out of employment through no fault of their own," he said, "but it has tremendously affected their purchasing power, their ability to pay taxes and, generally, to contribute their quota to Canadian prosperity. Likewise, the investor who has had no return on his investment has had to curtail his expenditures and has been a poor customer either for the farmer or for industry." Mr. Russell strongly urged the absolute necessity of complete and generous co-operation with the farming industry in order to bring about its re-establishment and promote its prosperity.

Then, up spoke Mr. W. R. Campbell, president of the Ford Motor Co. of Canada, on behalf of all workers in industry. Space will not admit of any extended quotations from Mr. Campbell's address, but a few will suffice to indicate his position, and the attitude he urged all employers of labor to adopt in the interests of the workers, in their own interests, and in the interests of the country at large. Mr. Campbell said:

"As far as Canada is concerned there can be no normal times until all of our people who are capable of working have an opportunity for gainful employment—free and unfettered by government aid. In dealing with the ills which must be corrected it is time that the very grave importance of our human relationships be recognized. I repeat—until every man in this country capable of working is able to find gainful employment the prime responsibility of industry is to the worker. The employee's interest must not be subordinated to the interest of the shareholder.

"Perhaps," continued Mr. Campbell, "these are rather amazing statements, but not until this condition is brought about can either capital and management or the worker prosper. Our primary duty, then, should be to make certain not only that the interest of labor in the benefits of industry be not subordinated to that of capital, but also that labor be granted an equitable share of the profits of industry."

Suggesting the only possible way in which industry can be re-vitalized and employment provided, Mr. Campbell said: "What we must do is to start the ball rolling upward injecting more money into our economic structure at the bottom, through the wages of these industrial workers and profit by the steadily increasing circulation of this money upward through our whole business fabric. That is good business because it is profitable. Perhaps it means even the salvation of our industry itself as we know it today. Our problem at home, then, becomes one of finding greater markets for the products of domestic manufacture, and this again devolves upon the problem of finding greater employment and providing increased purchasing power for our own workers. By increasing the earnings of the average worker, by paying him a greater return for his labor and by increasing the volume of his employment, by pumping into our economic structure more money at this base, we can get a start toward solution of our problem."

Having made a reference to the further development of export trade, Mr. Campbell concluded: "It is an inescapable fact that we have now entered upon an era of social readjustment in this world. In working out this adjustment so that the rights of both capital and labor shall be properly balanced, it devolves upon capital to take the initiative, with the welfare of the whole nation always in mind. Capital must do this, because capital has the imagination, the training and the ability to assume leadership. Until this proper balance is struck and until this country has been able to lift itself by its own courage and its own ability back to normal times, it is imperative that capital defer profits, defer its claim to a return upon invested wealth, in order to provide all of our people able to work with adequate employment at such a return as to enable them to live in accordance with standards commensurate with the calibre of Anglo-Saxon peoples."

Thus we have open confession by two of Canada's great industries that their first responsibility today is not to shareholders and bondholders, but to farmers and workers—the real primary producers; that capital must wait for its return; may more, that it must take the leadership in solving the problems of the producers, workers and consumers, in full realization of the fact that unless and until these are solved, there can be no return and no future for industry or the enormous investments that have been made in industry. Such frank albeit belated recognition of this great truth is, in itself, the first and a long step towards ultimate advancement and success for all.

Lord Tomlin said that Vancouver with its marvelous harbor and a network of railways behind it should be vastly interested in the solution of the world's depression. Because, he said, Vancouver should logically hold Asia commercially in fee.

LOST 10 LBS. IN TWO MONTHS

Not too Old to Reduce at 50

Here is a letter which proves that there is no necessity to tolerate excessive fatness, even at the age of 50—

"I was becoming too fat after reaching 50, and had attacks of rheumatism. I took many ordinary salts and other medicines, but they did not do any permanent good. Then I commenced taking Kruschen. I soon began to feel different—brighter, stronger, had more energy, no rheumatism, and to my surprise, after two months I lost 10 lbs. in weight, although I was eating much more, as digestion fullness had nearly left me."—W. H. G.

The numerous vital salts in Kruschen stimulate and tune up the bodily functions from a number of different angles. Your stomach, liver, and kidneys all feel the immediate benefit. Your blood is cleansed of impurities and becomes invigorated and refreshed. You forget indigestion, rheumatism, and depression in a new and unaccustomed feeling of physical and mental exhilaration.

WHAT DOES YOUR HANDWRITING REVEAL?

By LAURENCE HIBBERT (Grapho-Analyst) (All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note: The response to the author's invitation to readers to send in a specimen of their handwriting for "personality reading" has been enormous. Readers are referred to the announcement at the foot of this article.)

"How can Grapho-Analysts help me?—that is the question that readers invariably ask when they read my articles on the subject of character analysis from handwriting.

And it is a natural question. For in these days, perhaps more than any others, the struggle for existence, for progress is individualistic. I will endeavour to answer the question by first asking others.

Are you happy?—or are you contentedly frowning life with a constant chip on your shoulders?

Are you dissatisfied; a square peg in a round hole; unable to make any real progress, yet not knowing what to do to change the possibilities?

If you are married, are you contented?—or are you dissatisfied, creeping in, with perpetual bickering between you and your life partner?

Do you make friends, and keep them?—or are you living the life of an involuntary hermit, unable to enjoy the society and companionship of real friends?

The answers to all these questions can be summed up in a phrase—Know yourself, and others. Or, one word will suffice—Understanding. If you go through life without knowing and understanding yourself—your faults and your virtues;—your merits and your weaknesses—you will be seriously handicapped.

Life's prizes go to those who, knowing their potentialities, capitalise them—strengthen them, and, realizing their faults, strive to overcome them.

Grapho-Analysis helps you to know yourself, and thus enables you to make the most of your capabilities, whilst, at the same time, by pointing out your weaknesses, gives you an opportunity to eradicate them.

Handwriting is not merely a matter of putting pen to paper; you have to use your brain in order to write. And the brain is the captain of your body. Everything you do emanates first of all from your brain. Handwriting is only the physical expression of the instructions coming from your brain.

And everything you are and can be summed up in your handwriting, as diagnosed by an expert grapho-analyst.

I have space for only a few very brief extracts from character readings made recently.

R.M.—You are likely to be impulsive. You do not consider very long before acting. There is a slight strain of procrastination shown—do not let it grow. Your writing shows a distinct quality of truth; you have a desire to know things, and to investigate and find out for yourself.

Miss M.—You have a great pride and personal dignity, a retentive memory and are very careful about details. You have a considerable regard for your own importance, and are prone to regard yourself as full of originality and individuality. But at the same time, there is a reservation, not actual, and is not entirely sincere. I suggest that you try to be more your natural self; your friends will like you all the more.

Renewal Of Stock Feeder System Has Been Announced

Hon. Robert Weir, Dominion minister of agriculture, has announced the renewal of the feeder purchase policy, which was in effect from 1924 to 1932. Under this policy the Dominion department of agriculture will pay one-way railway fare and reasonable travelling expenses to purchase feeder cattle to return to their farms for feeding.

The object of this policy is to enable those farmers who have a surplus of feed to use it to advantage and at the same time provide an outlet for surplus Western cattle.

eyes white with crusted alkali and came slowly across to them, wiping his lips on the back of a dirty, hairy hand.

"Wait till I strip the packs. Them assen'll sure roll on 'em if I wait." He followed the patient burros to the corral where they surged at the full water-trough and his voice shrilled out in profane appeals.

"Hi, you Baptist! Git to hell outen that!... A chunk of rock as big as an orange smelt the reluctant Baptist behind the ear and brought him to order. "Presbyterian! Where the hell d'ye think you're goin'?"

Episcopalian... In five minutes he had his packs stripped and lined up and came up the steps wiping his face on his sleeve.

"Them damn asses," he growled, "are more trouble 'n thoroughbreds. I got to chuck 'em with rocks on the trail to git two miles a day outen 'em. In camp, the minute I take off the packs they wander off. They'll stray twenty mile by sun-up. I been prospectin' out here more'n thirty years," he complained. "An' I swear to God more'n nineteen years was spent trackin' loose burros. What you want with me?"

"Come inside," said Dustin. "Nice names you got for 'em." "Oh. You mean them asses. They've earned 'em. Now you take that ass Baptist. He'll run belly-deep in the mud but he finds an' all hell can't git him out! Presbyterian'll pick the roughest trail he kin find and shoulder the other asses into it. No matter where it takes 'em as long as they take his trail."

He stopped talking as Dustin came back with a bottle and glasses and his shrewd eyes watched the ranchman pouring. Kane was a "desert rat" but he was no fool. He was fairly sure that Sam Dustin's never civil without just cause. He drained the tumbler at a gulp.

"You'll be damned glad you had the guts to grubstake me this time, Dustin," he said. "I got news for you."

It was the first time in his life that he had ever called Dustin by his last name without any prefix and both partners sensed that it had its meaning. They both eyed Kane. Could the old fool be drunk on just one hastily swallowed drink? It was not likely. They could not know that the old prospector, who had spent a lifetime trailing will-o'-the-wisps across a continent, was intoxicated with the headiest wine in the world.

Success! He thrust a gnarled old hand into his tattered shirt and fumbled there.

"Scratchin' yourself or what?" asked Goddard. "What 'what," said Kane grimly. "You two listen to me." His voice rose shrilly as men do who would force belief.

"For more'n a lifetime I been trackin' an' trailin' across them ranges..." His knotted finger shot out toward the distant ranges of the West.

"I've done scratched gravel from Alaska to Tehuantepec. There ain't a country between hell an' high water where I ain't sweated my 'ted. I've eat more desert dust than the Lord used in creatin' man."

"Come to the point," said Dustin shortly. "Spike here says I've been a fool over to have grub-staked you. What's bin' you? What've you got this time? Need more of a grubstake to tie you over till the Christmas time?"

"Will you stand another stake if I need it?" demanded Kane. He felt he knew both men and he knew well that his few finds had not paid his grubstake bills. He did not really like a single bone in Sam Dustin's big body but after all, Dustin had staked him when no one else would.

"You mean you'll stand another stake if I need it?" he asked.

Both men eyed him. Old Kane might have concurred bad luck. He did it frequently. Good luck never! He must have some good news.

"Sure we'll stake you again," said Dustin quickly. "A man can't expect to win always. You've made one or two nice hauls. Dad, Better luck next time."

Dad Kane, desert rat, luckless prospector till now, gray and very wise Ulysses in Frontier lore, was taken in. He thought they meant it. These were partners worth having! How he had misjudged them! His eyes bored into Dustin's.

"I been seven days gittin' back," he said. "I was up in the Bent Wood hills..." Dustin's eyes contracted a little, possibly from the glare.

"We're partners in all my prospectin'," said Kane sharply. "But by God! I'm not sharin' in what I seen your men doin' up there."

"What in hell do you mean, you damned old..." began Dustin. But Spike Goddard waved him into silence.

"Wait a bit..." Spike's eyes narrowed and his voice softened. "Go on Kane. What do you mean?" "Mean? You know damned well what I mean. I ain't no cattio man but I know what it means when I find two Broken Spur men changin' brands on Hour-glass cattle. Usin' runnin'-irons on cattle on a fenced range at that. After that, they cut the fences an' piled tumble-weed along the wire to look like an old break an'..."

"You're crazy, man!... I tell you..."

"I ain't aimin' to start no trouble. Least of all do I want to have trouble with the Hour-glass people. I got me a good reason, too. You and me are partners in prospectin' but I tell you plain that if your men ain't called off an old man Joe Carr's cattle, I'll not only split with you... I'll go to him an'..."

"I tell you, you old fool, you're wrong," began Dustin. Then Kane exploded. "I tell you I seen 'em," he said. "It wasn't no small party just maverickin' a few calves like they've got a right to do. I seen Gray an' Eggs and Corse. They had a wagon in the holler an' they had a fire goin' an' a nigger heatin' the irons. They might know that usin' grease-wood for the fire'd be like shootin' out what they was doin'. On legitimate business they'd have had dry wood in the cooney under the wagon. You call off your dogs till I git done with my business with the Hour-glass. If you don't, you'll be sorry. I ain't goin' to be mixed up in no cattle war at my time o' life."

A breathless silence held both partners. For just a fraction of a second Spike Goddard's eyes held his partner's gaze. Then he winked. Dustin at once took the cue. He was mentally quicker than Spike.

"Damn those fools," he said quickly. "If they've been up to any game like that, we'll sure fire 'em. I gave 'em the wagon and a few days off to hunt in the hills. God knows we don't need Hour-glass cattle."

"You don't need 'em now," said Kane curtly. "For more'n three years I've heard men say that if the Broken Spur brand on most hides was cut down it'd strip to a Hour-glass. They change awful easy. You all don't need to do that from now on I tell you. Look here..."

His outflung hand threw a skin bag to the table where it hit the board with a dull metallic clink. Dustin pounced on it like a cat on a mouse and fairly snatched it open with teeth and fingers as Kane talked.

"I'll need a couple o' men to help me for a few days but I'm thinkin' that when word gets out of what I've found, there'll sure be a stampede like the Tonopah days. In the meantime I need powder an' fuses an' dynamite an' drills. Mine are all wore down to the roots so to speak. I need a new pick and some beddin', too. Them damned asses o' mine eat up most of my bedding. I'll need two quarts of mercury, too, an' a new channin' bag an' two hundred o' bacon an' flour an' sugar an' coffee..."

He rambled on but neither man paid any heed. Dustin laid an old newspaper on the table and emptied the contents of the bag on it and Goddard, who leaned over Dustin's shoulder, started back with a quick oath. Dustin, too, took fire at what he saw.

"Good God!" he said sharply. It was not an oath though Dustin was prone to use them. It was a combination of oath and disbelief and surprise.

"Where on earth did you find this, Dad?" he asked sharply. "I've seen gold from Alaska to Arizona but never anything like this. Where on earth'd did you find it?"

"Like it?" Kane giggled the senile laugh of old age. "I didn't find it on earth a-tail. I found it under the earth and I dug like a damned fool of a prairie dog to git it. I figured that beg'd of you both set up. This is what I git fer keepin' on tryin' after you all figured I was an other damned old desert rat gone crazy."

He thrust a claw-like hand deep into the little heap of sand and fragments and turned it over lovingly. Little yellow nuggets lay on top resting in rich promise on lighter gravel. One great piece of white quartz was laced and streaked with gold as red as fire and one chunk, almost as big as a man's closed fist, seemed made of solid metal.

"Looks like I've found the Mother Lode," cackled Kane. "What say?"

New Pattern Being Issued For British Jack Tar

The black silk handkerchief, or scarf, for many generations a distinguishing feature of the British sailors' uniform, is to be oblong instead of square, state admiralty fleet orders.

Since the latter part of the eighteenth century, the scarf, always 36 inches square, has been tied with a knot to meet the point of the sailor's collar. The new size will be 36 inches by 36½ inches.

A naval officer said that, after a little wear, the square handkerchief when formed into a tie or scarf, is not long enough to make a neat knot. Issues of the new pattern will begin at once.

Canadian bacon is facing a great opportunity in foreign markets if Cana dian producers will improve the qual ity and quantity produced, declares A.
Gainer, manager of the Edmonton packing firm of Gainer's Limited, who has just returned to the city after a three-months trip to Europe, where he investigated the markets for Canadian meats in the British Isles and on the continent.

The goal of quality for the British market must be the production of a hog with lean shoulders, long back and large ham, with the Yorkshire variety favored. He said Britain is ready to absorb, under the terms of the O'ta wa agreements, all the bacon that Canada can produce.

Canadian bacon exports, he stated, can be increased by 75 per cent or more if Canadian farmers will produce the hogs.

rural municipalities affected, if amalgamation could not be arranged to temporarily disorganize the units and then make way for complete government administration. It was Because of the desire to retain this local autonomy it was very difficult to arrive at any agreement which, when placed before the Department of Mun icipal Affairs, would signify that the municipalities in question were willing to forego local control of their affairs in favor of government administration.
However, following an all-afternoon session, a resolutions committee was requested to draft a proposal for con sideration after dinner. A resolution was brought before the evening ses sion and several amendments propos ed, none of which seemed to meet with general approval. A substitute motion was thereupon made by a delegation from Acadia Valley, reading:

Whereas this meeting wishes to retain the full measure of local autonomy and,

"Whereas the government stipu lates that extension of financial guarantees depends on closer super vision by the government, therefore be it

"Resolved: That this meeting, wishing to co-operate with the gov ernment in solving the present dif ficulties, suggests that until the end of 1935 the administration of the Municipal District be under the joint control of the Council and a representative of the government."

This resolution was carried, and J. A. Cameron, president of the As sociation, was instructed to commu nicate by long distance telephone with the Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, E. L. Gray, informing him of the meeting's decision.

Expo Fair Solution

Upon reporting back to the meet ing, following his conversation with the Deputy Minister, Mr. Camer on stated that the government repre sentative hoped that an arrangement might be concluded which should be mutually agreeable to the municipali ties concerned and the Department.

A motion was thereupon carried, in structing the executive to act as a committee to confer with the Deputy Minister at an early date to discuss the proposal outlined in the resolu tion.

Districts Represented

At Thursday's meeting, official rep resentatives were present from the municipal districts of Acadia Valley, Cereal, Colbourne, Golden Centre, Boulding Creek, Richards, Grand Hills, Cameron, Stewart, Wise, Hiltan and Dowling Lake. J. A. Cameron, pres ident of the Association and E. D.
Blain, vice president, presided at the meeting with J. H. Todrick, secretary-treasurer.

Express Appreciation

Early in the afternoon session a resolution was presented in which the Association tendered its appreciation to the Department for relief work grants as allotted to the various mun icipal districts, and for considerate treatment in general. A telegram from the Deputy Minister was read, in which Mr. Gray stated that, follow ing the districts' meetings, he would endeavor to arrange a conference with the executive at the earliest possible date and at any convenient point, preferably Hanna, for further discus sion of affairs under consideration.

The situation existing throughout the municipalities mentioned arises from the inability to finance certain services which are imperative at this time. As well as the ordinary relief problems which have presented themselves during the past two years, some municipalities are find ing it impossible to finance their municipal accounts. In addition there is the necessity of providing hospital service and medical atten tion through these municipalities.
It is pointed out that, under exist ing legislation, further extension of government assistance cannot be rightly undertaken in favor of mun icipalities throughout central eastern Alberta. In view of the fact that the government must increase and extend its financial assistance to these municipalities, it is contended that a better measure of government control over municipal expenditures and administration is only reason able.

The meeting, as it appeared, realized the fairness of this point. Lorne Proud foot M.L.A. for Acadia, and H. G. Mc Gren, publisher of the Hanna Herald were both invited to express their views upon the subject. Both speakers voiced their sincere belief that the government was endeavoring to render an efficient and sympathetic service to the stricken districts, but pointed out that existing legislation prevented the Department from extending the financial assistance to such an extent as is made necessary by prevailing conditions. Both speakers referred to the unquestionable right of the gov ernment to exercise greater control over the expenditure of such funds as the Department should be called upon to provide.

Thursday's meeting adjourned at 10 p.m. with the understanding that the executive should confer with the Deputy Minister, and that another meeting be called as soon as necessary.

WHEAT POOL

Increased Initial Remittance Made
Effective

Monday was not all blue for farmers operating through the Alberta Wheat Pool there was more "new wealth" in sight as the organization boosted initial payments on de liveries of 1934 crop by 15 cents a bushel.

Farmers were smiling even brighter than autumn skies, as drying winds of the week end, coupled up with warm sun shine, provided the impetus to threshing machinery oiled up after a prolonged holiday.
Soon wheat that a few days ago was in soggy stocks will be rolling toward the ele vators, and 50 cents will be the initial pool payment.

In keeping with previous announcement, thanks to bet ter prices and generally im proved demand, October marked the increase from 35 to 50 cents as the initial pool payment. The payment per bushel on 1933 deliveries was 25 cents right up to the time of the first interim remittance.

Compared with last harvest season, the boost means that farmers from the initial re ceipts will have almost 50 per cent more money to circulate.
On top of that, crop yields are generally much improved.
